Airline Updates

- Lufthansa will be launching a new service from Newcastle to Munich starting February 2020.
- Air Portugal will be withdrawing its service between London City Airport and Porto and Lisbon from the 27th October.
- Air Antwerp will restore London City's link with Antwerp from September 9th. Air Antwerp is a replacement for Flemish airline VLM, which served the route for many years until it ceased trading in August 2018. Both Dutch airline KLM and Irish carrier Cityjet are shareholders in Air Antwerp.
- Scandinavian Airlines is to launch a year-round service between Manchester and the Norwegian city of Stavanger later this year. The twice weekly route will operate on Mondays and Fridays from November 8th, using a B737 aircraft.

Milan-Linate Airport is suspending all commercial operation until 27th October 2019. During Linate's closure, the vast majority of flights will be temporarily moved to Malpensa, which for the occasion has created an extra check-in island in its departure lounge and has increased the number of security checkpoints and the number of gates.

Bus connections from the city to the airport will be intensified and all trains to Malpensa will double the number of carriages. Furthermore, the airport will refund the motorway toll to all those who will drive to the airport and use the official airport parking and will launch a special flat-fare shared taxi service to help those needing to travel to the airport.
