French strike action planned for 7th March

Travellers to France could face disruption, with unions calling for strikes and demonstrations on 7th March. The strike is in opposition to the French government's plan to raise the retirement age and follows several protests over the past two months.

The UK's Foreign Office (FCDO) has modified its travel advice for those visiting France, stating: "Several unions have called for cross-sector strike action and demonstrations across France on Tuesday 7th March. Industrial action may start the evening before a strike day and run until the morning after"
